Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

PUBLICATIONS

OF THE

AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION

THIRD SERIES. ISSUED QUARTERLY.
VOL. I, NO. 3. PRICE, $4.00 PER YEAR

ESSAYS IN COLONIAL FINANCE

BY

MEMBERS OF THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION

COLLECTED AND EDITED BY

A SPECIAL COMMITTEE

AUGUST, 1900

PUBLISHED FOR THE
AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION
BY THE MACMILLAN COMPANY
NEW YORK.
LONDON: SWAN SONNENSCHEIN & CO.

Copyright 1900, by
AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION

PRESS OF
ANDRUS & CHURCH,
ITHACA, N. Y.

CONTENTS.

PAGES

I. REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON COLONIES 17– 20

II. THE FRENCH COLONIAL SYSTEM. BY EDWIN R. A. SELIGMAN 20– 39

1. History and present extent of the colonies, p. 21–23.
The beginnings, expansion in the 17th century, retrograde movements in the 18th century, new period of progress since 1830, recent vigorous policy, p. 21; enumeration of the dependencies at present, the "colonies" and the "possessions," p. 22; separate position of Algiers, Tunis and Indo-China, p. 22–23.

2. Development of the Fiscal Policy, p. 23–24.
The mercantile system, 19th century, period of autonomy, 1825–1841, period of assimilation, 1841–1854, period of modified autonomy, 1834 to the present, p. 23; minor changes of 1892, p. 24.

3. The French Budget of the Colonies, p. 24–27.
Part of the colonial expenses paid by France: expenses of sovereignty, subventions, steamship and cable subsidies, p. 24–25; Receipts of France from the colonies: contingents, p. 25; contributions, India rent, p. 26; minor receipts, p. 27.

4. The Colonial Budgets, p. 27–28.
Process of the colonies in fixing their own budgets, p. 27; intervention of the government, p. 27–28.

5. The Colonial Expenditures, p. 28–29.
Obligatory expeditures, p. 28; optional and extraordinary expenditures, p. 29.

6. The Colonial Revenue, p. 29.

A. Taxes—I. Direct taxes: land tax, p. 29–30; poll tax, business licenses, p. 30–31; native taxes in Algiers, p. 31–32; II. Indirect taxes: stamp duties, liquor tax, tobacco tax, minor excises, monopolies, p. 32.

B. Tariff Duties: export duties, import duties, p. 32; tonnage and harbor dues, octroi de mer, p. 33.

C. Income from colonial property, postal and telegraph revenues, p. 33.

D. Subventions and subsidies, p. 33–34.

7. Conclusion, p. 34.

The two policies: autonomy and assimilation; the need of simplification, p. 34.

8. Tables, p. 35–38.

9. Authorities, p. 39.

III. The German Colonial Fiscal System. By Isidore Loeb 40–72

1. History of the Relation of the Dependencies to the Mother Country, p. 40–43.

Acquisition of the colonies, p. 40–42; determination of their relation of dependency, p. 42–43.

2. Government of the Colonies, p. 43–54.

General principles of organization, p. 43–48; administrative organization, p. 49–52; general administration, p. 52–54; financial administration, p. 54.

3. Revenue, p. 54–63.

Determination of the revenue, p. 54–55; discrimination in favor of the mother country, p. 55–56; Sources of revenue: I. Revenue from colonial sources, p. 56–61; A. Direct taxes: business tax, p. 56–57; income tax, poll tax, p. 57; inheritance tax, p. 58; house tax, p. 58–59; B. Indirect taxes: customs, p. 59–60; excise, fees, p. 60; income from public property, p. 60–61; II. Subventions from the mother country, p. 61–62; statistics of revenue, p. 62–63.

4. Expenditures, p. 63–68.

Determination of expenditures, p. 63–64; extent to which the colony or mother country sustains expenses of the other, p. 64; kinds of expenditures: permanent expenditures, p. 64–65; temporary expenditures, p. 65–66; statistics of expenditures, p. 66–68.

5. Budget, p. 68–69.

6. Debt, p. 69–71.

7. Authorities, p. 72.

IV. The Dutch Colonial Fiscal System. By Clive Day 73–104

Extent of the Dutch colonies, p. 73; contrast of Asiatic and American possessions, p. 73–74.

The Dutch possessions in Asia: Importance of Java, p. 74–75; Dutch government in the East, its centralization, p. 75; increasing influence of the Dutch Chambers, p. 76; History of fiscal policy: a, the period of transition from the system of the East India Company, 1800–1830, p. 76–77; period of the culture system, 1830–1860, p. 77; modern period, p. 77–78; reforms in modes of raising revenue, p. 78; amount of the Indian revenues, p. 78–79; causes of the deficit in recent years, p. 79; attitude of the Dutch Chambers to the India subsidy, p. 79–80.

The revenues of Dutch India: I. Taxes: a. The land tax on natives, p. 81; attempts at reform, p. 81–82; b. tax on land held by title, p. 82; c–d.

business tax on Orientals and Europeans, p. 82–83; c. direct consumption tax on non-natives, p. 83–84; f–g. taxes on native vehicles and on public sales, p. 84; h. poll tax, its relation to the commutation of labor dues, p. 84–86; i. stamp duties, inheritance and transfer taxes, p. 86; j. import and export duties, abolition of protective features, p. 86–87; k. internal taxes on production, p. 87–88; l–o. other revenues grouped under taxes, p. 88; Resources from the sale of products: p. coffee, decline of the government coffee culture, p. 88–90; q. cinchona, p. 90; r. tin, p. 90–91; s. coal, p. 91; t–u. government monopolies of opium and salt, p. 91–93; other revenues, including those from forests and railroads, p. 93.

The expenditures of Dutch India: in the Netherlands, p. 94–95; in India, p. 95.

The budget, its preparation and administration, p. 95–97.

Debt of Dutch India, p. 97–98.

Dutch possessions in America: The fiscal systems, p. 98–99; control of the budget, p. 99; revenues and expenditures, p. 99–100.

Tables, p. 101–103.

Authorities, p. 104.

V. Italy's Experience with Colonies. By Albert G. Keller 105–111

Italian colonization recent, p. 105; acquisition of the colonies, p. 106–107; their economic worthlessness, p. 107–108; their cost to Italy, p. 108–109; artificiality of Italian colonization, p. 110; authorities, p. 111.

VI. SPANISH COLONIAL POLICY. BY FRANK W. BLACKMAR 112–143

The general politico-economic policy of Spain in acquiring her colonies, p. 112–115.

Spain's early colonial methods, p. 115: The Council of the Indies, for government, p. 117; the India House, for trade, p. 117–118; the colonial governments, p. 119; taxation, p. 119; regulation of colonial industry, p. 120–121; officialism, p. 121; colonial laws made in Spain, p. 121–122; failure of restrictive measures, p. 123–124; colonial trade partly opened to other nations, p. 125–126; the fiscal system of the 18th century, p. 127–128.

Progress in the 19th century: constitutional position of the colonies determined, p. 129; new legal provisions for colonial government, p. 130; their administration, p. 131–132; the fiscal system of Spain: the budget, p. 132; taxation, p. 133; the budgets of the colonial provinces: Cuban expenditures, p. 134–135; receipts, p. 135; Porto Rican expenditures, p. 135; receipts, p. 136; 18th century methods retained, p. 137; municipal finance, p. 138; insular revenues: customs, p. 139–140; church taxes, p. 140–141; public debt, p. 141–142; conclusion, p. 143.

VII. THE DANISH COLONIAL FISCAL SYSTEM IN THE WEST INDIES. BY C. W. TOOKE 144–167

The Danish W. I. colonies described, p. 144; the Danish W. I. Company, p. 145; colonies purchased by the crown in 1745, p. 145; proved of no material advantage, p. 145–146.

The fundamental colonial law of 1863, p. 146; the legislative power, p. 146–147; administrative authority, p. 147–148; colonial councils, p. 148–149.

Financial organization : separate colonial treasuries, p. 150 ; the colonial budgets, p. 150–152 ; audit, p. 152 ; revenue : direct taxes, p. 152–153, 156 ; indirect taxes, p. 153–156 ; expenditures, p. 156–157 ; fiscal dependence of the colonies upon Denmark, p. 157–161 ; tables, p. 162–167.

VIII. FINANCES IN THE BRITISH WEST INDIES. BY CHARLES H. HULL 168–188

Colonies included, p. 168 ; their present financial embarrassment and its cause—the decline of sugar, p. 168–169 ; the resultant policy of Imperial relief, p. 169–170, and its implication of Imperial control, p. 170–171. The political difficulties thereof exemplified in the recent history of Jamaica, p. 171–172 ; necessity for some further machinery of fiscal control, 172.

The fiscal systems of the W. I. colonies determined by : their insular situation in the tropics, p. 172 ; their exclusively agricultural character, p. 172–173, and the improvidence of their black population, p. 173.

Jamaica as an illustration : situation and population, p. 174 ; increase of governmental expenditures since 1884, p. 175 ; inadequacy of revenues when depression set in, p. 175–176 ; consequent investigation by Sir David Barbour, and its results, p. 176 ; administration of Jamaican finances, p. 176 ; expenditures, p. 177–178 ; revenues, p. 178–179 ; customs, 179–180 ; excise, stamp taxes, p. 180 ; rates levied on real property, p. 180–182 ; licenses, p. 183.

The Bahamas, p. 183–184 ; the islands south of Jamaica, p. 184–186 ; Imperial relief, p. 187–188 ; the Colonial Loans Act, p. 188.

IX. The Fiscal System of Egypt. By E. W. Kemmerer 189–217

Relation of welfare of Egypt to its financial administration, p. 189–190; historical sketch; extravagance of Ismail Pasha and resulting Egyptian debt, p. 190–191; consequent European intervention in 1876, p. 191–192; relation of Egypt to Turkey, p. 192–193; the Caisse de la dette and the dual control, p. 194; the deposition of Ismail, the Law of Liquidation, and the consolidation of the debt, p. 195–197.

The Arabi revolt, p. 197, and England's single control, p. 198–199; conditions leading to the reforms in the London Convention of 1885, p. 199–200; redistribution of surplus, p. 201–202; methods of meeting extraordinary expenditures, 202–203; powers of the Caisse, p. 203; the internal government, p. 204–205.

Egypt's progress under the present fiscal system: three periods of English financial administration, p. 205–206; the present budget, p. 216; Revenue: the land tax, p. 207–208; railways, p. 208–209; customs, p. 209–210; Expenditures: irrigation, p. 210–211; public instruction, p. 212; results, p. 212–213; tables, p. 214–216.

X. Finances of British Possessions in South Africa. By Roland P. Falkner 217–262

Introduction: Types of government in British South Africa, p. 217; expansion of Cape Colony key to growth, p. 217–218; limits of Cape when first acquired, first English immigration and eastward movement, conflict with natives, p. 218; successive phases of government: protectorate, crown colony, and incorporation, p. 218–219; parallel in Natal and Zululand, p. 219; northward movement with like development of government forms, p. 220; relations with Boers, p. 220–221; extension of British rule to limit that of Boers, p. 221–222.

Cape Colony: Government, p. 222–224; Governor is High Commissioner for South Africa, p. 222; self-government established, p. 223; Governor's prerogatives, rights of mother country, the ministry, p. 223; the legislature and the franchise, p. 224; local government and finance, p. 224; divisional councils, number and functions, p. 224; receipts and expenditures contrasted, character of receipts, purposes of expenditures, p. 225; municipalities, number and size, receipts and expenditures contrasted, character of receipts, purposes of expenditures, p. 226; debt, p. 227; village boards, p. 227; harbor boards, p. 227; Revenue of the colony: general heads, p. 227; customs tariff union, p. 228; lucrative items in import trade and calculated ad valorem rates, p. 229; other taxes, p. 229; The colonial estate: railway, postal and telegraph revenue, p. 230; Public expenditure: for purposes of public debt, p. 231; railway maintenance and construction, p. 231; development of railways, p. 231–232; construction beyond limits of colony, p. 232–234; earnings of the railway system, p. 234–235; defence of the colony, p. 235–236; share of Great Britain, share of the colony, p. 236; education, p. 236–237; postal and telegraph expenditures, p. 237; receipts and expenditures contrasted 1866 to 1891, p. 238–240; same comparison since 1891 and before 1866, p. 240–241; expenditure from proceeds of loans, p. 241–242; public debt, its history, p. 242–243; present amount, p. 243; purposes for which contracted, p. 243–244.

Natal: Distance from Cape Colony, p. 244; settled by Boers, p. 244; governed as crown colony, p. 244; self-governing since 1893, p. 245; powers of Governor, p. 245; Legislative Council, p. 245; Legislative Assembly, p. 245; franchise, p. 246; ministry, p. 246; scope of government activity, p. 246; character of receipts, p. 246; purposes of expenditure, p. 247; receipts and expenditures contrasted, p. 247; public debt, p. 247.

Rhodesia: Limits of present treatment, p. 247; government of southern Rhodesia, p. 247; administrative council and executive officers, p. 247–248; control of Imperial government through Resident Commissioner and High Commissioner, p. 248–249; establishment of British South African Company and its purpose, p. 249–250; mining rights and control, p. 250; railroad development promoted, p. 250; mode of financing railroads, p. 251–252; telegraph development, p. 251; war expenditure, p. 252–253; governmental duties, p. 253; character of revenue, p. 253; its growth, p. 254; purposes of expenditure, p. 254; its growth, p. 255; attitude of Company towards its expenses as a government, p. 255.

The Protectorates: Bechuanaland protectorate associated with crown colony, p. 255; progress of crown colony, p. 256; revenue of colony and protectorate, its character, p. 256; expenditure of colony and protectorate, p. 257; relation of protectorate to colony, p. 257; present finances of the protectorate, p. 258.

Basutoland, annexed to Cape Colony, p. 259; ceded to crown, p. 259; sources of revenue, p. 259; character of expenditure, p. 259.

Note on sources of information for financial affairs, p. 260.

Appendix: Detailed statement of receipts and expenditures of Cape Colony for the ten years ending June 30, 1895, p. 261–262.

XI. ENGLISH COLONIAL FISCAL SYSTEMS IN THE FAR EAST. BY JEREMIAH W. JENKS..... 263–303

Introduction, p. 263–264.

The Straits Settlements, p. 264–270: description, p. 264; history, p. 265; government, p. 265–267; Finances: conditions affecting the fiscal system, p. 267; revenues, p. 267; expenditures, p. 268–270; local revenue and expenditure, p. 270.

The Federated Malay States, p. 271–278: history, p. 271–272; government, p. 272–273; Fiscal system: general, p. 273–274; Revenue, p. 274: export duties, p. 274; sales of land, p. 274; licenses, p. 274–275; Perak as illustrative: export and import duties, p. 275; railways, p. 275-276; expenditures, p. 276–277; tables, p. 277–278.

Labuan, p. 279–280: government, revenue, expenditure, p. 279; table, p. 280.

British North Borneo, p. 280: description and government, fiscal system, table, p. 280.

Sarawak, p. 281: description and government, fiscal system, table, p. 281.

Hong Kong, p. 281–282: comparison with the Straits Settlements, p. 281; table, p. 282.

Fiji, p. 282–287: contrasted with the Straits Settlements, p. 283; history, p. 283; government, p. 283; Revenues: native taxes paid in produce, p. 284; import duties, p. 284; local revenues, p. 284–285; expenditure, p. 285; debts, p. 285; tables, p. 286–287.

British New Guinea, p. 287–289: history, p. 287–288; government, p. 288; fiscal system, p. 288; tables, p. 288–289.

Mauritius, p. 289–290.

Ceylon, p. 290–301: description, p. 290; government, p. 290–291; Revenue: import duties, p. 291–292; demand for their revision, p. 292; export duties, p. 292–293; salt tax, p. 293; port and harbor dues, p. 293; crown lands, p. 293–294; railways, p. 294; Expenditures: public works and roads, p. 294–295; military expenditure, p. 295–297; local finances, p. 297–299; local budget, p. 299; debt, p. 299–300; results, p. 300–301.

General conclusions regarding the British colonial fiscal system, p. 301–302.

Bibliography, p. 303.

ERRATA.

P. 162, note 2, for "3 Hansard" read "4 Hansard."
P. 175, line 6 from bottom, for "1890–1900" "1899–1900."